

MEET THE PUPPETS

Here are some of the characters in Puppet Panto.

The King

The King is a Pelican. He is an actor in Puppet Panto and is rather forgetful. We are not sure if this is because he is old, or just easily distracted! He is carried around by his faithful servant Clod who makes sure he gets where he needs to. The King is very funny as he sometimes gets over emotional, or does really bad acting but thinks he is good at it. We think he would like to star in a Shakespeare play but are not sure he ever will!

Emmental

Em is the leader of a band of merry rats who are travelling traders, they collect potions and trinkets from across the world to sell on their travels. The rats love to sing and have their own wagon, driven by anyone silly enough to volunteer. Em has to be in charge, which is sometimes a bit much as those rats are quite naughty!

Valentine

Valentine is a horse. He is a trained actor who studied at RADA - one of England's top theatre schools. He is the director of Puppet Panto and he also wrote the show and produced it. He is rather smashing and keeps the whole troupe together. He has a lovely rich voice and plays the Narrator in the show. Sometimes people think he should play a horse but he is too sophisticated for that. He does like apples though.

The Magic Mirror

The Puppet Panto troupe are putting on their version of Snow White. The Magic Mirror guy says he really is a magic mirror and he lives inside his frame all the time. He only comes out when someone needs to know the truth and he always tells it. He is really cheeky so you have to be careful what you ask him. He does like to sing and is not very sensible considering what his job is. He has quite a few friends, who you will see in the show.
